THE UNRINISHED LINE

A number of unconverted vottog men used to regularly attend the meetings at a Corps in a little coun-try town in Australia. They were try town in Australia. They were good singers and loved to give voice to Army songs. To make the meetings more interesting the Capital sometimes let the lads pick their own songs and choruses, and these she wrote on a blackboard for all to she wrote on a blackboard for all to see, especially if the words were not in the Song Book.

The leader of the lads was a hap-no leader of the lads was a nap-py, bright-faced young fellow, up to every prank which his fun-loving nature could promp him. He was not saved. One night he asked for the song, "Only a sinner, saved by grace."

The Captain asked him to stand up and give out the words, while she wrote them on the blackboard. The other lads smiled as their leader rose, and began to read out the words;---Nought have I golten, but what I've

Then he sat down, and the people wondered why he did not finish the line.

After the meeting the Lieutenant asked him why he did not finish it, and he just said, "I could not finish it—I am not saved."

The Officers had been praying for his conversion, and now they prayed harder than ever, believing that their prayers would be answered.

In the meantime a great change come over the lad. He was under conviction.

Some time afterwards the Divisional Commander, who, by the way, was Lieutenant-Colonel McKellzie, conducted the week-end meetings at this Corps, and one of the first souls to seek Salvation was this lad, who rose from his seat at the back of the Hall and walked our to the Penitent Form, where God met with him. With his face shining with newwith his tace shining with new-found joy he exclaimed, with in-recessing emphasis on rising to his feet, "I'm only a sinner, saved hy grace." To-day he is a happy Sal-vationist, and the proud husband of a Salvationist."

SONGS OF SALVATION

THE SINNER'S EPIEND Tune: Scatter seeds of kindness

Would you like to know the Saviour? Would you like to know the Saviour Sinner, will you come to-day? Christ is ready to receive you, Come, poor sinner, come away. Do not turn the Saviour from you, For He is your dearest Friend, And though earthly friends lorseks

He'll stay with you to the end.

Chorus Sinner, hear the Saviour calling; Jesus Christ, your dearest Friend!

Would you like to know the Saviour?

Would you like to know the Saviour? Wanderer, will you not be wise? Perhaps you promised precious, mother. You would meet her in the skies. And although you've been neglectial Jesus Christ is pleading still; Oh, accept the offered mercy, And fulfil our Saviour's will.

Oh, accept our precious Saviour,
For He did on Calvary die;
Sinner, seck our Lord's forgiveness,
He is willing to forgive. He is willing to torgive,

He is willing to forgive,

And though sink in degradation,

You can come to Him and live.

GOD'S MESSENGERS

God sends messages by his servants who wrote the Bible, just as parents often send messages by one child to another, or by one servant child to another, or hy one servant to another. What God tells us by Moses, David, or Paul, is just as binding upon us as what He may say to us directly. We need to know all that He said by the mouths of others, and we may lean on this and be happy in it.

HOW TO BE SAVED

Paul prayed without ceasing. Day and night his prayers, and pleadings, and intercessions went up to God (Acta 16:25: Phil. 1: 3-11; Col. 1:3, 9-11).

The pentecostal baptism of the Spirit, and the three thousand conreraions in one day, were preceded by ten days of prayer, and praise, and heart-searching, and Bible-searching. There, said the doctor, 'that man leads the mightiest holiness meetings in all England.' He then told me about those famous Whitechapel meetings. When I went to England I determined, if possible, to find out the secret of them.

TIME ADMED CHETC

For a long time a gentleman used to drop a penny into the hat of a poor beggar who sat by a church door in Madrid. For a week, howdoor in Madrid. For a tweek how-yeey, the gentleman was confined to his house by illness. When he was able to return to instincts he put the usual coin into the hat of the beggar. "Pardon me, sent," said the latter; "have you not a little ac-count to settle with me? You have not been this way for more than a week. You we me at test seven-pence," "Hegone!" replies he week. You owe me at least seven-pence." "Begone!" replied the gentleman. "My gifts are alms, not salary. I owe you nothing." Let us heware lest the regularity with which God sends His gifts to us causes us to look upon them as our lawful right instead of the unmerit-ed bounty of our Heavenly Father.

At the next Corps the Adjutant and her comredes were able to supply two hundred me people. At the next corps the Adjutant and her comrades were able to supply two hundred children with soup every day, and at various places garments were distributed.

Comrades Very Brays

"All my comrades were very brave in spite of bunger and famine," exclaims the Adjutant. "You would have been blessed by their ainging and elapping and laughlog demeanour." Once more it was evident that God's wonderful strength was there in the hour of need. It was such restauncies as this we listened to an our dear courarder say in the Hollness meeting, some during the discomfort of violent headache, owing to their essented condition.

There are many other incidents that could be related. There is the story of a woman who would to take the file of a woman she hated to the Army Hall, where she was converted.

One of their would never eater the Army when wearing his helmet and weapon. It was his custom before entering to take them off and leave them at the customs.

Pleading for Needy

The Captain, who speaks German, was able to render good service at certain towns during the deportation periods. "Many needy cases I was achoration persons. Many needy cases I was able to help. It was my custom to go and ask to see the German military authorities, and being in my Salvation Army uniform and speaking the language I was admitted, and then I would plead very hard with the one upon whom those were dependent and on whose behalf I had called might not be deported. Whether there were few or many, God was in our midst helping us, and many souls were won for Christ." It was when the Captain was at Quaregnon, near Mons, that he was able to do a good deal of this liberating work, and when the English authorities were established in the place she found them to be the soul of kindliness and eager to encourage every good effort put forth, who called to see, what their needs were was deeply touched by their tory and soon sent what they required for the children.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Newfoundland Congress

WE are sure all their comrades throughout Canada will rejoice with Lieutenant-Colonel and Mrs. Adby and their forces over the exrelient Congress gatherings which are reported in this week's "War

These meetings, with the offesence of the Commissioner and the Offieers who accompanied him will undoubtedly prove a immoing off place for a year of renewed effort, at the end, of which all concerned will again have reason for uniting in praise to God for advances made and victorics won,

There are special difficulties in Newfoundland, but there are also special opportunities, and whatever else there may or may not be there are acoule there who are out-andin their service for God and their efforts to save souls. May God give them abundantly to see their desires fulfilled during the coming year.

Knowledge is Power

THE Canadian National Exhibition, which is now holding its annual session in Toronto, is an institution that is a special necessity in a country like our own, where distances are so great, and condilions so varied.

By bringing together, as is done in this lustance, and in varying degrees in those of similar enterprises other parts of the Dominion, its products wateral and manufactured there is afforded opportunity for comparison and for the disclosure of occasion for co-operation which inakes for the increased prosperity. of all which can hardly be overestimated, and which could be in up other way obtained.

A very pleasing feature is the manner to which, with the President, Mr. T. A. Russell at their head, the directors gather round them at the daily luncheon, men and women representative of institutions and interests from all parts.

The knowledge of one another, and the interchance of blood which is this blought about is all for the good. The people of Canada cannot ken to know each other too well—the better they do so, the better ean all unite in making the Do-

Unlimited Opportunities

WE are again nearing the time when the annual sessions at the Officers Training Colleges will be opening. In both East and West men Cadels will again be entering. Thoute Cad that the cause which called them elsewhere had been removed and that peace now reigns. The need for Officers in the Salvation Army is an urgent one. There are unlimited opportunities for men and women who will give up worldly prospects to become fishers of souls—who are sufficiently farsignized to see and understand that the business which will bring the best return for a life's work is that our the fruits of success in which can be carried over the houndary to the Great Beyond, when comes the inevitable summons to cross thither.

Life ing we know it is such a fleeting uncertainty that to centre ore's hopes and efforts upon any thing which pertains only thereto, however innocent and enjoyable it may in itself be is to eircle about a nivot which may at the most unexpected moment behave in a manner high will unset all calculations and, at the heat must one day collance and bring the daily round to a ter-

Fighting all the Way

IT cannot be too plainly made clear to all who come to the Penitent Form, or otherwise make confession that they have decided to serve God, that this is but the start on the road and the commencement of the battle. Victory is sure if they persevere, because the grace of God is sufficient for all things, but it will be a real fight.

In these days when it is so much the custom to cover over unpleasant truths with a mantle of sentiment and to hide facts under a dispulse of words, it is necessary that those to whom falls the duty of instructing nud caring for young converts, . should both bear in mind themselves, and impress it mon their charges, that the devil is a real personality, and an adversary with whom they will have to reckon all through life.

In his enmity towards God he has sworn to do all he can to thwart His purposes, and especially so in regard the redemption of mankind. the atmost of his power, and it should ever be borne in mind that man alone is no mutch for him, does he endeavour to overlibrow every soul. Converts should be made to feel this is so, and taught to live in that constant touch with God hi

THE PRINCE IN TORONTO

Presentation of Military Decorations at the Exhibition—Sister Mrs.
Waite, of Owen Sound, Roceives Medal Awarded to Her Son for Conspicuous Beavery

A MONG the duties undertaken by the Prince of Wales during his visit to Toronto was the very pleasant one of presenting decorations of war to some two hundred of their winners, or their nearest relatives if the bero had fallen on the field.

The presentation took place on the Grand Stand at the Exhibition on Wednesday afternoon, August 27th, and was witnessed by over fifty thousand people. Describing the event the Toronto "Mail and Empire," says:
"It took nearly an hour for that line of honour winners to pass be-fore the Prince for official recogni-tion, and in it was a great variety of citizens.

"There were many sturdy soldiers who were affe to claim their own innours and who still appeared to retain the best of health in spite of their experiences; there were many broken and battered veterans, with arm or leg missing—some with both an arm and a leg gone—or with eriphele bodies which told the story of their sacrifice; there were the blinded veterans led by their relablinded veterans led by their rela-tives; there were the aged fathers or mothers, dressed in black, eager to claim the honour which their to claim the honour which their sons could not elaim, and cager like-wise for the handelasp which should have been for their sous; and there were children upon whose breasts the Prince pinned medals won by fathers who gave up their lives in France.

He clearly shows in his fotters to the Romans and Corinthias that a liberty which gives license to do that which injures another is not true Christian freedom.

That which interferes with the That which interieres will the rights of another is not true Chris-tian or democratic freedom. The highest form of liberty is that which "I exercise myself," (Col. 24:16)—

This is one of the greatest assertions of personal liberty we find in the whole of God's Word. Paul was a Koman Citizen. He seemed oriegral that fact in the same manner that a true British citizen regals his citizenship to-day, as something to feel proud and happy for.

HERE is nothing surer in this world than that "n good wife is from the Lord," unless it be that good husbands are also provided by Him. There are not a few who would insist that the latter task is the more difficult of the two, and maybe they are right.

That is not the point, however. What we are after is to get at some of the romances that are behind the present-day Brother and Sister Smith, Captain and Mrs. Jones, Adjutant and Mrs. Brown, Major and Mrs. Robinson, Colonel and Mrs. Snooks and so on.

The Salvation Army in the very nature of its work, and the manner in which its people move about, is good ground for romance, using the word in its best sense, in this connection. Among those who have stood beneath the Army's Colours and pledged themselves to each other and to the Salvation War as "Continual Comrades" are many whose bringing together has shown a working of Providence on their behalf in which truth has outdone fiction.

We do not mean, necessarily, that they have had thrilling careers after the fashion of the heroes and heroines of the dime novelette stamp. Some have no doubt had adventures that are out of the ordinary, but what we have particularly in mind are instances where the Hand of God bas directed and overnated events and prought together comrades who, humanly speaking, it was most unlikely sined hands and hearts.

NECESSITY OF OBEDIENCE

There must always be obedience to certain laws if the best results are to be obtained. "You must-change your entire method of sing-ing," said a celebrated teacher of music to a young, ambitious girl, who had already spont three years in voice culture. The girl hesitated; she resented the advice, and return-ed to her room to think it all out. She had already achieved some suc-cess, and had spent time and moncy on the training of her voice, and yet she knew that her adviser was the most samous master of vocal technique in Europe, and had traintechnique in Europe, and had tran-ed many of the most brilliant arl-istes by his method. The girl at last yielded obedience; and gained the success that would not other-wise lave been possible. She was Jenny Lind, the world-renowned
